The Prime Minister, resuming his speech, said his Government's icy was to preserve peace and keep the Spanish conflict from spreading into a European conflagration. Ex ing lack of sympathy for Brit ish shipowners who were risking seamen's lives to run Gen. Franco's blockade in their gamble for high profits, Chamberlain cited the case of one impecunious shipowner who had started with two ships and now operated 23. He said there was nothing necessarily wicked in this, and neither did he see why Britain should go to war to protect a speculator's profits. He said British shipowners who ran such obvious risks were no more entitled to protection from their Govern-ment than Britons who fought with either Spanish faction. Taking up Lloyd George's challenge that the British should blocklain said: "In his seventy-sixth year he would plunge this country into Victims Caught in Torrent Sweeping Down Valley of Milk River - One Baby Is Missing.

RAIN HAS FALLEN

Tracks of Two Railroads Damaged- Buildings on Some Ranches Scattered 10 Miles Away.

HAVRE, Mont., June 24. - Nine persons were drowned yesterday in a flood of the Milk River in northentral Montana. Heavy property damage was caused.

Rain has fallen over every section of Montana in the last 24 hours, creating quick floods similar Custer Creek flood that weakened a trestle through which a train plunged early Sunday.

In the Gravelly Coulee near Laredo, south of Havre, yesterday, a wall of water 20 feet high made gulches 40 feet deep in the valley.

The dead there were: Emil de Haan, his wife, and three daughters 2, 5 and 9 years old; Charles ters, 2, 5 and 9 years old; Charles Prat, a farmer; Herman Wendt, Fred Tillghman of Hogeland, and James Brown of Duluth, Minn., em-ployed on de Haan's ranch. A baby of the de Haans is missing.
Survivors told how the sudden torrent swept through the coulee. Mrs. Wilfred Tow said rain started falling as she was preparing dinner. Fearing a flood, the family sought high ground, reaching safety in time to see the house swept away. D. A. Couch and his family ran to a knoll when they saw the first surge coming, he said, and were joined by other families. They watched their possessions float away. Buildings on seven ranches in the tered 10 miles away.

The flood also struck Harlem, 60 miles above Malta. Workmen went through mud and debris to repair damage to tracks of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads near Zurich, 20 miles above Harlem.

Townsend, southeast of Helena, reported floodwaters broke out of Cottonwood Creek, 14 miles to the northeast. Buildings on two ranches were swept away. A bridge was

Charge Based on Certification of C I O Union as Bargaining Agent in Pacific Ports. By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 24 .- Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (A. F. of L.), accused the National Labor Relations Board yesterday of prejudice in certifying the Interprojudice in certifying the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (C I O) as bargaining agent for longshoremen in 31 Pacific Coast ports.

He charged the board with lowering wages, "breaking down" working condition and trying to "turn control" over to Harry Bridges, West Coast C I O maritime leader, whom he described as "a known Communist." He added in a statement that the election several months ago that resulted in the C I O group being designated bargaining agent was unnecessary because "there was no dispute between Pacific Coast shipowners and their employes" and that, while the men may have inclined toward the C I O then, "if a vote were taken today, 90 per cent of the men on 'he Pacific Coast would vote for A. Lawyer in Completing Evidence Calls Lead Firm Manager to Try to Show Action Was Inspired.

The suit of the State Bar Committee to disbar Attorney Bert F. Fenn for professional misconduct was ended yesterday, the eighth

The 66-year-old attorney, who acted as his own lawyer in case, called 21 witnesses in presenting his defense to charges of the Bar Committee that he solicited damage suits personally or through "run-ners," that he promised clients that he would pay all expenses of their litigation and that he requested them to give false testimony. Before closing, Fenn called James A. Caselton, manager of the Na-

A. Caselton, manager of the Na-Fenn filed numerous occupational disease suits in behalf of former miners employed by the company in its mines in the nearby lead district. Fenn attempted to show through the witness that the disbarment proceeding was inspired by the lead company in retaliation for his filing the suits.

$4,000,000 Damage Suit.
Caselton testified that more than 300 suits, asking about $4,000,000 in damages, had been filed against the company, and that in an investigation of these cases to determine the merit of the claims, the company learned of the conduct of several lawyers, including Fenn, in their handling of the cases.

Caselton said the investigation of the lawyer's conduct in these cases was incidental to the investigation of the claims, but that information the company received about the lawyer's activities was turned over to the St. Louis Bar Committee for any action it considered proper. He denied Fenn's assertion that the "lead company was out to get me disbarred."

disbarred."
Fenn has contended in statements to Special Commissioner Charles E. Rendlen of Hannibal, who presided at the hearing, that the evidence used by the Bar Committee against him had been obtained from the National Lead Co. He charged that the company paid his former clients to make damaging statements against him.

his former clients to make damaging statements against him.

Ruling on Evidence.

The Commissioner ruled that evidence as to the conduct of the lead company was not relevant in the hearing unless it tended to show that he was justified in bringing the $150,000 damage suit against certain employee of the lead comcertain employes of the lead com-pany and members of the St. Louis pany and members of the St. Louis Bar Committee. The State Bar Committee charged in its complaint against Fenn that the suit had been filed "unprofessionally" and with-out proper inquiry. His chief witness was his wife, Mrs. Sudie Fenn, who testified she persuaded her husband to repre-sent miners in their cases against the lead company, and that in her close association with her husband promise clients to pay costs of their litigation or request them to testify falsely.

In concluding her testimony yesterday, she assumed complete re-sponsibility for sending a contraceptive preparation through the mails, a charge on which her hus-band was fined $100 in United States District Court in 1930, on his plea of no contest. The incident was cited by the Bar Committee in tits complaint against Fenn.

The Bar Committee called 22 witnesses in presenting its case, most of whom were former miners. Their testimony was to the effect that when Fenn or his "runners" solicited their cases they told them that Fenn would pay for their med-ical examinations and all costs of their suits, and that Fenn told some of them to testify falsely about the condition of their health.

about the condition of their health.

Dates Set for Briefs.

Commissioner Rendlen, in taking the disbarment case under advisement, gave the Bar Committee until Sept. 15 to file its brief and Fenn until Oct. 15. He said his report and recommendations in the matter probably would not be ready intil often Nov. 1 matter probably would not be ready until after Nov. 1.

During the discussion of fixing the dates for the filing of abstracts of the testimony and the briefs, Fenn told the Commissioner he planned a trip to Egypt late in August and that he probably would be away three or four months. He said it was unlikely that he would be able to prepare his brief, and requested the Commissioner to announce his recommendations immediately.

The Commissioner refused, stating he wanted Fenn to have an opportunity to submit a brief in answer to the one filed by the Bar Committee and to point out any omissions, unfair or insufficient statements in the committee's abstract of the testimony.

The Commissioner's report and recommendation, including his findings of fact and conclusions of law, will be filed with the St. Louis Court of Appeals, which will make the final decision in the matter. Rendlen was appointed by the Appellate Court to hear the case.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 24.—The brief but tenderly-nourished going the wrong way all year.

This year the Reds are red hot. Of course McKechnie must be given much of the credit, Bill has a way with pitchers. He didn't find Vander Meer, but you can bet your roll that he'll get all the pitching from the young man that he's capable of giving. He'll bring Lee Grissom around, probably. And if his luck holds out in games like the final with the Giants, they'll be pointing to Bill in October as the Miracle

Man of the season. It looks like an easy pennant to win. The Giants are hard to beat, but they have their trou-bles, which may or may not be reduced as a result of the ac-quisition of Bob Seeds, outfielder who has had unusual success this year hitting home runs in the International League. The Cubs could win with another streak or two, but they seem to lack consistency, though on paper they look like the class of the league. The Pirates might win, if they'd split a season four ways and quit after the first quarter. But the Reds seem to be the hot team this year.

TODAY was an open date for the Browns. A game origi-nally scheduled with the Washington Senators has been moved to Sunday, when a dou-bleheader will be played. The teams will start their series with Few of Present Heavyweights Measure Up to Standard of Real Championship Contenders.

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff. NEW YORK, June 24.—Joe Louis, now strongly entrenched as the world's heavyweight boxing cham pion, finds himself in a peculiar position today. Having wiped from the record that 12-round knockout wo years ago, with his sensation knockout over the German, Wednes day night, Joe is more popular than ever. People want to see box. But they want to see him against a man who has a chance dollar gates for exhibitions. Who is around? Max Baer?

Louis stopped him in four rounds in 1935 and many of Baer's folowers have always contended that he quit in that fight, being counted out while he knelt on one knee.

It was announced before the neling bout that the winwould be forced to appear in

No Opponent Selected.

Promoter Mike Jacobs stated emphatically there would be a title fight in September and maybe Baer would be the opponent of Louis. And so the matter stands. It is doubtful if anyone believes that Baer is really a suitable opponent for Louis, yet his victory Tommy Farr stamps him as the only logical contender around. Tony Galento, of Newark? An Joe Louis seemingly has overe weakness. Instead of dropping his left he dropped Schmeling.

Max Machon, Schmeling's trainer and made it a t. k. o. by tossing in the towel at the count of 8.

Counting two more would have een a mere technicality and Max Machon probably thought that those gents who flew in from Hollywood and Seattle might want to catch the next plane back.

Of course, the paying guests from the Coast were taken for a ride in a manner of speaking, but what is 6000 miles between friends. The airway gents have suffered some tough losses lately and they can use the money.

In this week's issue of LIFE you will see something that is important news even to President Roosevelt himself! For in this week's LIFE you can see for the first time just which people are for Roosevelt and which people are against him -and why.

You can see who agree with his attitude towards Business and his attitude towards Labor; and who disapprove-see who favor his wages and hours legislation, who approve his stand on TVA, who like his foreign policy, and see those who are against them.

This is a camera report of tremendous social significance, prepared in collaboration with the famous FORTUNE Quarterly Survey, which is so accurate and authoritative that it predicted the exact size of President Roosevelt's 1936 majority with an error of less than 1%!

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Notes on the Blg Fight.

Editor of the Post-Dispatch: T is no great surprise to me to lear I that Max Schmeling claims that ter-rific blow over the kidneys was a foul The word "foul" has run through neling's career persistently. Even be fore he won from one Jack Sharkey on a foul, I remember that Max was ever quick to cry "foul" on the slightest provo-cation. His debacle Wednesday night was too much. It will strike even Max's friends as odd that if he were really fouled he would have said so then and there in the ring. I remember, too, Max Machon has always been trigger-tongued on calling fouls for Max. Neither Machon or Schmeling uttered a word about "foul" when they had the proper chance. Nor those few words over the air. What had ned to his much-vaunted ability to happened to his much-vaunted think clearly after being hit?

Incidentally, the forecasts on this fight only go to show how illogical even the so out on the limb for Schmeling. Most of the forecasters who picked Schmeling never once went back and compared his most spotty and unimpressive record with the undoubtedly more impressive record in predicting what a fighter will do on going to take a great deal of pleasure in reading what will surely be the alibis of these great fight prognosticators. I heard one Wednesday night over the air which justice. will be a sample of these alibis: "If Louis hadn't landed that punch over the kidney in the opening seconds. Schmeling would have won!" I ask you, could any reasoning be more puerile and screwy than

But, after all, probably Max is canny at that at having the alibi of "foul" ready, for surely in no other way can plain away this stunning upset to its the pries—not to say hopes. I feel genuinely sorry for Max that he has to go back to Germany under these circumstances. But as he has always said, "Fighting is my pared for any eventuality that will face him when he gets home. GEORGE M. KEITH,

A FALSE ALARM.

The cry is again raised that freedom of the press is threatened. The plaintiff is J. David Stern, publisher of the New York Post. The Post was about to publish information it had purchased from L. G. Turrou, which had been obtained by Turrou in his official capacity as the Government's chief investigator in the German espionage affair. The Government is seeking to enjoin publication of what has been described as the "signed confessions" of four suspects now in custody and still to be tried. The Government contends that publication at this time would hamper the progress of the investigation now under way.

Turrou has resigned as an investigator, though his resignation, it is explained, will not be accepted, and thus become formally effective, until September. The point need not be pressed. Let it be conceded that Turrou is technically in a position to peddle the material he collected while in the Government's employ. Let it be conceded, too, that Turrou is moved solely by the highest patriotic motives, as he has theatrically exclaimed. Let Publisher Stern be endower, with the same honorable intentions.

But while in this generous mood, may we not When the Government says, as it does say, that publication in advance of prosecution might obstruct its | City. efforts and disserve justice, is it not fair to believe that the Government is telling the truth? Is it not palpably absurd to single out the Government as the villain in the piece, choosing this occasion for-in Mr. Stern's words-an "unprecedented attempt to erase freedom of the press from the Constitution"? Let's chuck histrionics, drop the curtain on melodrama and examine the situation in its obvious facts. Everybody whose name appears in the cast will have his day in court. The four suspects are on their way grave. to the witness stand, to prove their guilt or innocence. Turrou, the resigned investigator, will tell his story to the grand jury. The publisher is conto muzzle the New York Post.

As the litigation winds its way, the investigator, Turrou, will have ample opportunity to tell all he knows about the spy plot in a court of record, and therefore to the whole world, for his testimony will then be available to all the newspapers, including the New York Post.

course. The Government is making no assault on new and strange gods appear in the temple. In the freedom of the press. It is, in the circumstances, exercising a warranted precaution. And in pleasantly acquiescing in this view, the New York Post, we feel bound to say, would be observing an ethical precedent and becomingly co-operating with

We regret to see Mr. Stern raising the cry of freedom of the press in this case. Too often it has been a false alarm—an alibi, not a genuine grievance. As we have said before, the cry of "wolf" can be used so often by publishers that it will meet only disbelief if and when the real wolf appears.

Freedom of the press is too precious a right to be subjected to that danger.

BONUSES FOR THE S A T C BOYS?

When the people of Missouri approved a $19,600,000 to include college students who served less than three months in the Student Army Training Corps? It has always been assumed that the S A T C boys were not entitled to the bonus, but this policy has now been reversed by Assistant Attorney-General William O. Sawyer. He says the people intended for them to benefit.

Apparently the genesis of the bonus movement is were not needed and have not been sold and that there is, in addition, a balance of $25,700 in the bonus fund. Of course, there is such a thing as tearing of the Social Security Board in New York, brings the State Treasury, and of relieving taxpayers by quiry. Other members round out the commission just that much. Instead, they furnish a test for the ingenuity of politicians as to how they can be spent.

IT'S CRICKET.

We have just been watching a game of cricketof village cricket, mind you-through a vivid repor ci the famous "Y. Y." of the London New Statesm and Nation, and it has been a jolting, jolly experience. Gone forever is the notion that cricket is a leisurely, ves, lackadaisical sport. It is swift, daring, at times foolhardy, as you shall hear. Carry on, "Y. Y."!

I did not know how the game stood at teatime when each side had an innings, but after the tea-interval what cricket we saw! The spirit of tip-and-run had entered into the gam batsmen stole runs at the peril of their lives. Not that any of them aimed at scoring a single every man of them struck at every ball with a view to a boundary. And it was astonishing to see how many boundaries they scored. It was as though having abandoned prudence they batted with all the greater assurance. They had taken for their motto: "Every man a Jessop," and, like Jessop, they scored more runs in five minutes than a careful batsman could score in half an hour. Naturally, they got themselves quickly out, as who would not, with one of the owlers taking tiger-springs like Gregory as he bowled, and aiming well and truly at the stumps

Thus it went, hammer and tongs, through the buf feting day. Some of the idioms are quaintly for eign, and the allusive heroes are, to us, total strangers, but it is clear that Jessop and Gregory, whoeve they are, swing from their toes.

Darkness at last ends the carnage. As the exhausted spectators refresh themselves with cups of piping colong at the village inn, we can well understand, as "Y. Y." tells us, that, "deep down in his In justice to all concerned, including heart the Englishman loves village cricket—that it is his perpetual day dream—the earthly paradise of administering the program of blind aid and the administration of the traffic and

DRIVERS' LICENSE PROGRESS IN ILLINOIS.

The special session of the Illinois Legislature nov appears to realize something which did not dawn on the last regular session, to wit, that the people of Illinois are more interested in a State drivers' license law than they are in who is to administer it.

Thanks to a new compromise bill, the prospect is for the adoption of a license requirement which will thoroughly conquered and subdued the world to the harmonize the differences that have blocked enactment in the past. Under the bill, which must be passed within a week if the session adjourns on schedule, the Secretary of State would be granted discretionary authority to examine Chicago drivers, while the examination of down-state drivers would the fight. be conducted by the Highway Division.

This is as good a solution as any, for although it might seem that examinations should be conducted by the same State agency in all parts of the State, pretty close to Utopia.

that is merely a detail of procedure in which people generally are uninterested. What people want is to have the highways made safer, and they are safer when adequate drivers' license statutes keep the in competent and unfit operators from the public thor oughfares.

THE BENTON INCIDENT.

At the behest of a real estate operator named Howard Huselton, self-appointed custodian of public mor als, the Board of Governors of the Kansas City Art Institute failed to reappoint Thomas Hart Benton as a member of the faculty, despite the fact that President Vincent of the institute says, "Benton is a splendid instructor in painting and drawing." The action is tantamount to dismissal, though at any time between now and fall the board is free to change its position.

Mr. Huselton's objection to Mr. Benton centered or certain passages in the latter's recently published autobiography-passages which he characterized as "sensual, gross, profane and vulgar." But it is clear that his prejudice against the artist is not limited to that. An amateur art critic, Mr. Huselton criticised Mr. Benton's work in general and announced the ascribe to the Government equally sincere purpose? next step in the crusade would be to remove the Benton murals from the State Capitol at Jefferson

> It strikes the onlooker as odd that a morality movement in Kansas City should be directed against a distinguished American painter when the town reeks with far juicier material for those with the reformer's urge. Long ago, competent critics have acknowledged the brilliance and validity of the Benton style, and his paintings are on the walls of most of the famous museums. He has arrived and possesses a tremendous and enthusiastic following.

So the Kansas City incident will chiefly serve to reflect upon the taste of those who engineered it, and to provide amusing comment from Mr. Benton's ready tongue. Frederick Shane, a Kansas City artist, says, "Benton gave Kansas City art a new lease on life," suggesting that St. Louis should welcome him with open arms, if he cares to come here,

Paying for the Past

Heavy debts are major problem of municipal administration, says journal in this field; average city spends half its budget for debt service; efforts to impose bond limit encounter many difficulties; cost of government cannot be cut and few new activities undertaken while the burden of past expenditures hangs over taxpayer.

From the National Municipal Review.

T has been repeatedly insisted in these columns that the problem of high real estate taxes is in reality not a tax problem at all, but a debt problem. When it is recalled that the average municipality in New York State—a State in which there was not recorded a single municipal default dur-ing the depression—spends approximately 50 per cent of its budget for debt service, it may be seen that solution of the local debt solve the tax problem

Yet, even after eight depression years, we are apparently making few strides toward an answer to this question. The indebted ness of municipalities, the Detroit Bureau of Government Research indicates, has decreased very little during the last year.

Probably the keenest thinking on this problem at the present time is being done in connection with the New York State Constitutional Convention. Various proposals have been made, with an eye to keeping debt within reasonable limits. Most of them stem from the valiant stroke in behalf of the pay-as-you-go system made in New York City's new Charter, whereby the largest city in the world goes gradually on a pay-as-you-go basis over a period of 50 years.

One proposal would write into the Constitution an over-all debt limit of 10 per cent of the full value of property. While this would certainly keep the ratio of debt to property value within reasonable bounds, it is a drastic reduction of present debt limits. Many municipal situations in New York State would be over this percentage, and the provision would take care of the requiring them to retire in any year in which new indebtedness was to be incurred tially more than the amount of the

There are many difficulties involved in the application of an over-all debt limit of this kind. What is to happen as the overall limit is approached? Is the school dis-trict in need of a new school to be favored at the expense of a city in need of a new city hall or a county in need of a new courthouse

Several suggestions have been made to take care of the problems arising under administration. One is that a m prove or disapprove within a certain speci-fied range, but that there be written into the Constitution an absolute top limit. Another would put brakes on the process incurring debt as the debt limit is ap-proached, through requirements of debt re-tirement as new debt is incurred. Under this latter plan, the over-all debt limit would thus actually never be reached.

All these are evidences of sound thinking, though no one of them may turn out to be the perfect solution. In any event, it seems reasonable to assume that the citizen taxpayer, supplied with adequate machinery of budgetary control, will be able to translate his will into governmental action, provided he has the opportunity so to do. His will may be in the direction of less governmental service and lower taxes or more govern mental service and more taxes.

But in any budget of which 50 per cent is dedicated to debt service before a cent may go for current operations of the gov-ernment, there is no opportunity for the taxpayer to translate his will into public action. The tax rate is already so high he is unlikely to want to pay the cost of additional services. He may want to reduce the cost of government, but of this there is no chance. The government budget has gone out of control, paying for the past.

Kidnaping and Lynching

From the New York Herald Tribune.

COMMENTING upon the prompt and vig-corous activity of Mr. Hoover's G-men in the Cash kidnaping case, the Richmond Times-Dispatch, the paper which has cou-rageously led the fight from within the South for a Federal anti-lynching act, makes

"Where is that great devotee of states' rights, Senator Pepper of Florida? He objected loudly on the floor of the Senate to the Federal anti-lynching bill, which provided for the entry of Federal G-men into the various states to secure evidence against vided for the entry of Federal G-men into the various states to secure evidence against Sheriffs and their deputies who allow lynch-ings to take place. And where are the many other Floridians who echoed his sentiments on this issue? Has a single one of them been heard to argue that Federal agents had no business in the Cash kidnaping?"

There was no protest because everyone loathes a kidnaper. But, the Times-Dispatch asks, does not this silence suggest that it was not really states' rights in which the Southern opponents of the anti-lynching bill were interested, but the maintenance of their "right to lynch"? "right to lynch"?

We are frank in saying that we do not know the answer to this question; we do not think the Cash case alone is sufficient anti-lynching bill of insincerity in raising the principle of states' rights. But we do be-lieve that this kind of trenchant attack upon lynching by Southern leaders of opinion, this insistence from within the South that every objector to anti-lynching measures ex-amine and make sure of his own motives, will do more finally to exterminate the lynching evil than any moral homilies from

Last winter the Times-Dispatch enlisted

Last winter the Times-Dispatch enlisted an impressive body of support for the Federal anti-lynching bill from other Southern newspapers and leaders. It evidently did not win over a majority of opinion in the South, and for that reason it seemed that a Federal act, if adopted, would both violate the spirit of the states' rights principle and probably prove unworkable in practice.

But the campaign of the Times-Dispatch and its associates remained one of the most powerful blows ever struck against the lynching evil; and if the carrying on of the war brings Southerners generally to feel that the principles involved in the lynching issue are no different from those involved in kidnaping, the rest of the country will be quick to provide the South with the weapon of a Federal law against this lingering blot upon American life.

Lesson From History

From the Des Moines Register.

I N 1837 we were having one of our recurrent periods of "hard times." Depressions had begun to be definitely industrial-not just "financial." So although our economic system has become ever so much more complex in a century, there were distinct similarities between the dolor expressed in some constant them. pressed in some quarters then and that expressed in troublous periods nowadays. Let us illustrate the tone in which notable personages spoke in 1837:

DEMORALIZATION: "Society has played out its last stake; it is checkmated. Young men have no hope. Adults stand like day laborers idle in the streets. . . . The present generation is bank-rupt of principles and hope, as of property."

the midst of a serious financial and indus-trial crisis. It just seems inconceivable that conditions can ever right themselves enough to have prosperous times in this country again. Trade and industry throughout the land are disorganized. . . The problem of unemployment has become general. . . The renewal of confidence and the allaying of violent fear in the minds of the people, which will allow for active buying rather than money hoarding, must precede business recovery."—Speech by Daniel Webster POLITICS:

"The old constitutional doctrines are fast fading away. . . . Will the people awake to their rights and duties? I fear not. They have become stupefied and are led on to their ruin by the arts of demagogues and the corrupted influences of party."—Letter of Justice Story to Justice McLean. Simply to read these few statements, to consider that as a nation we were to run into vastly more perilous times than these, and then to ponder what has transpired in the subsequent 101 years—these things should fortify us at least a mite.

Oh, sure, the circumstances are different We have lost the "frontier" that cushioned the effect of industrial strains back East,

But human societies have a peculiar habit of adapting themselves (though slowly, of course, and sometimes painfully) to the new mechanisms that they have developed. Is not the lesson that life is so short as to warp our perspective sometimes? Looking over the larger periods—a hundred years 200 years and even more—is there so much

Today Benton's blunt words fairly crackled over the telephone wires from New York as he told the press what he thought about it ali. "The book came out at the beginning of the last school year," he said. "None of the governors said anything about it to me then, at least anything that gave me any hint they objected. Why didn't they bring it up while I was still in the city?

"If the board isn't going to reappoint me, I've got to know right away so that I can make my plans for next winter, and it's got to be understood they're hiring the same Tom Benton—I'm not 'going to change."

The measure, enacted in the closing hours of Congress, increased the authorized number of commissioned navy officers by 1031, making the total 7562. The authorized number of marine officers was increased 211, to a total of 1503.

Aside from the promotion of officers who otherwise would have had to wait months for advancement, the immediate effect of the legislation will be to retain in service for a year longer 68 officers who were slated for retirement June 30 because they had not been selected for advancement.

Those to be promoted immediately had been so selected but were

Those to be promoted immediately had been so selected but were on a waiting list.

Also directly affected are 675 navy and 105 marine officers who had failed of promotion but were retained in service. They will have another opportunity to advance.

The legislation revises a promotion system in effect since 1916. Under the old system boards of senior officers selected annually those best fitted for advancement. Officers who failed of selection after a maximum number of years in a rank had to retire ultimately.

Under the revision, officers considered for promotion. rank had to retire ultimately.

Under the revision, officers considered for promotion will be rated best fitted, fitted, or unfitted. Those in the second category will be given a further chance at advancement instead of being marked for retirament.

But, notwithstanding the importance of these situations, Judge Billings is popular in his home community. He is a country campaigner with many successes to his credit. When he dons a pair of bagsy breeches with rents indicating they were snagged when he crawled through barbed wire fences, and permits his beard to grow for three or four days, he looks the part talking the language of the back areas and wins votes.

The fact that he may not have The fact that he may not have quite the judicial poise associated with the idea of the State Supreme ings has had his greatest political successes in the past.

There is opposition to Judge Billings in his own community, and in spots it is very pronounced. A man who has been prosecuting attorney of his county for sight man who has been prosecuting ar-torney of his county for eight years and judge of his circuit for six has made many enemies, who have personal grudges, and these will have their influence on the will have their influence on the campaign.

Not all of them, however, will a cost the Judge votes. He has political enemies in Dunklin County who will vote for him for Supreme Judge on the theory that that is the only way they can get rid of him in Dunklin County.

But most of the lawyers and

TO PARIS DUE TO MOURNING The only member of the Dunkin County bar who is openly opposing Billings is former State Senator Langdon R. Jones, who has a large following in Dunkin and adjoining counties. Which are anti-Billings votes.

Holding On As Factor.

Not an inconsiderable factor in the situation in this part of the State is a fear that, if Billings is elected, one or two officeholders from Southeast Missouri will loss elected, one or two officeholders from Southeast Missouri will lose their jobs, and a feeling exists in parts of the section that Dunklin County is asking for too much. The county now has four residents of the town of Kennett in the higher offices, Judge Robert J. Smith of

STEEL PRICE CUTS ANNOUNCED AFTER CLOSE OF MARKET

Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 24. A FTER the close of the stock market today, the Carnegie-Illinois Corporation, chief subsidiary of United States Steel, announced a cut in prices of its products to levels obtaining before 1928. The step was taken, it was said, to meet competitive conditions and to stimulate de-mands. "Big Steel's" Birmingham subsidiary, at the same time, also posted price reduc-tions.

By the Associated Press, NEW YORK, June 24.-Stocks leaped upward 1 to more than 4 points today in the fifth consecutive rallying session, but profit selling became more insistent and cut down top marks in many cases at Perspiring brokers, short-handed because of the recent paring of forces when the commission business dropped to a little more than 300,000 shares a day, had various explanations for the upswing, but few could put their fingers on any few could put their fingers on any concrete reason. Swamped with uestion marks from all quarters, question marks from all quarters, exchange members answered with the suggestion the market may have been oversold; that industry has shown signs of plumbing bottom with improvement indicated here and there; that the strength lately displayed by commodities was a tip-off on the possible ending of the recession, and that speculative and investment contingents had lost most of their political jitters.

Althouncement of the President's fireside chat tonight attracted much interest in financial circles, but was said to have been more or less of a neutral market factor.

What Other Markets Did.

Notice was taken of the chief executive's comments at his press conference in which he indicated he would reveal his views on a special session of Congress in this evening's speech. It was also not overlooked that he termed dollar devaluation talk "Wall Street stories."

The rapidity of the market's advance caused analysts to study other sharp rises in secent years. It convertible preferred.

"Special clearances featured furniture rugs, housewares, men's shirts, cotton blankets, bedspreads and linen luncheon sets.

blankets, bedspreads and linen luncheon sets.

"Paints and hardware were more to the fore, together with refrigerators, ranges and table grills."

Regarding wholesale buying, the agency added:

"Encouraging reports from agricultural districts were not accompanied by any increase of consequence in the number of orders released for fall requirement, as movement of seasonal commodities was just starting. Requests from urban centers were chiefly for replacements of lightweight clothing, traveling accessories, vacation necessities, sportswear and bathing suits."

HEAD OF MATCH PLANT DENIES FIRING C10 MEN

Tells N L R B His Employes Liked Universal So Much They Gave Firm a Plaque.

A. H. Rosenberg, president of the Universal Match Corporation, which is defending itself against charges of unfair labor practices filed by a C I O-affiliated union, returned to the witness stand at a National Labor Relations Board hearing today.

Rosenberg, called yesterday as the first defense witness, categorically denied the testimony of union witnesses who quoted him as makagainst I SEE SEE witnesses who quoted him as making disparaging remarks against the union in the spring of 1937. He was emphatic in his denial that the company had fostered an independent union and that C I O followers had been laid off or fired.

A spirit of loyalty and co-operation has always existed between the management and employes at the firm's plant at Ferguson, Rosenberg said. The true feeling of employes, he declared, is epitomized in a bronze plaque they presented to the management two years ago on the concern's tenth anniversary. A picture of the plaque was introduced in evidence.

Tells of Closed Shop Deal.

When he learned of a movement to organize the plant last spring, the witness said, he deliberately remained away from the plant in or-der not to influence the workers. It was on April 26, 1937, that he learned employes had met two days previously in a Ferguson theater to yote overwhalmingly in favor at the vote overwhelmingly in favor of af-filiation with the Independent Match Workers of Missouri, he testified.

Despite objections by super-visory officials at the plant, Rosenberg continued, he signed a closed shop agreement with the independ-ent union on May 15. When asked on cross examination what efforts he had made to confirm results of the election, Rosenberg remarked that representatives of the CIO, complaining against action of employes in barring them from the meeting, had verified election re-

The company head insisted that in all of his actions and utterances in regard to unionization he was impartial and disinterested. If his employes had voted for a C I O or an American Federation of Labor nion, he said, he gladly would have bargained with the organization of the employes' choice.

Rosenberg said he made no effort to determine the names of union agitators in the plant, realizing that workers, under the "law of the land," had the right of self-

Denies Charges of Threats. Questioned in regard to his conversations with George Drybread and Richard McKinney, officers of the CIO local, Rosenberg said the men had distorted his remarks in their testimony. McKinney, former watchman at the plant, is financial secretary of the local, and Dry-bread, now employed by the firm as a watchman, is vice-president. Both men quoted Rosenberg as ordering them to choose between the CIO local and retaining their jobs. "What I said," Rosenberg tes-tified, "was for them to choose between staying at the plant and be-ing happy and finding work else-where." The men, he said, had where." The men, he said, complained about their wages refused to accept more difficult work at higher wages.

On motion of the company, the name of Edward McKee, one of five C I O men listed in the comfive C I O men listed in the com-plaint, was stricken. Testimony was introduced to show that Mc-Kee was fired for leaving his ma-chine. Sections of the complaint alleging the company had given financial support to the independ-ent union and had persuaded Fer-guson police to aid in anti-union activities also were dismissed. No evidence was introduced on those sections.

ELSIE ROBINSON.

The writer, J. C. Gales of Elizabeth, Pa., is a technician employed by one of the largest corporations in the world . . . performs the varied service of electrical, civil and construction engineer . . . makes blue prints, lays out plans, estimates and supervises the manufacture and installation of hundreds of machines.

"I work," says he, "14 hours a day, seven days a week and am on call 24 hours a day; work with a staff of assistants and office workers numbering 10, where 60 were formerly employed. Naturally I believe in nery—through it I earn my living but I am not going to lie about the conditions it causes.

Then follows a letter, far too long to print, but containing as frank an expose of our Machine Age as we've seen—an expose as moving as any drama if you remember the human blood, sweat and tears . . . the weariness, fear and growing terror . . . which lies behind these dark statistics.

"WE FINISHED a new plant the other day," he continues. "The plant will produce as much in seven hours as formerly was produced in 16 hours. Power energy will be reduced by one-tenth in theory. Twelve men out of 60 will be discharged due to this 'progressive step,' most of these old men, who in two or three years would be due for a pension. At their age they can find no other work. What will happen to them?

"Work has been poor-two and three days a week. The men retained on the job will now work only one day a week, and sometimes only one day every two weeks. This also means that 700 more men in another part of the plant must work hard every second, every minute, all day, without a let-up 'except lunch hour,' to keep up with the machines. They will also have their working hours and purchasing powers

(HAVE YOU SEEN men working like that? Have you watched the muscles leap and twist under their dripping skin . . the veins tighten in rigid cords about their panting throats? Have you looked into their staring, driven eyes . . . eyes that do not, dare not see anything but the work upon the machine before them, the roaring, racing, ruthless machine which is devouring them? I have. I have worked like that myself. I know what I think about this Machine Age.)

"By this time next year we expect to install 10 machines in this department, which will replace 350 men. That is: One of these machines can do the work of 35 men.

"Another major company spread word around a couple of years ago that they intended to build one of the largest, most modern electrically operated mills in the world, and employ about 3500 men. What they failed to add was that five of their large present-time plants are to be torn down and the best men transferred to this new plant.

"Over 1500 men will be thrown out of work when this new plant starts production. Furthermore, this plant will produce as much eight months as the entire present system produced in one year!"

(HAVE YOU SEEN a man come home after he's been fired . . . his feet dragging, his face gray beneath the grime . . . his mouth twitching as he tries to get up enough nerve to tell his wife? Have you watched the wife's face when she saw that working mouth . . . seen the terror leap into her eyes as she realized what it meant . . . listened as she tried to muffle her sobs in the night, wondering how in God's mercy, she was going to feed the little tad? I have. I've been fired myself.)

Grimly the tale goes on. Then ends on this statement:

"Yes-we are going forward with progress, but we are going backward just twice as fast because of progress. We have plenty of luxuries in our stores-made by those same machines. But who can buy luxuries if the machine has taken his job? Machines pay all rightthey pay the persons who own and operate them. But how about those

Play Adapted Because Family Comedies Wane

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 24. AMILIES with various mental screws loose have cavorted upon the screen too freely for severa years now, as part of the insane comedy cycle. Erratic mamas and balmy papas, surrounded by helter-skelter chilren in varying stages of insouciant dizziness, motivated film after film until the public, loving it at first, finally said "Enough."

The prize play, "You Can't Take It With You," set Columbia studios back $200,000 when it was purchased last year — when studios were still buying plays at such fancy prices. The play concerns a rather extraordinary family, and conceivably, if it were photographed as it was played on the stage, might be just another nutty comedy of the waning cycle. (Last worthy specimen, "Merrily We

But Director Frank Capra and Writer Robert Riskin, as usual on the stories they adapt, have done things to the play. New treatments on successful stage plays (or nov-els) used to be considered cine-matic high-handedness, but nowadays even the playwrights sel-dom object. Especially when the prize winners are unhappy. The teachers and parents look thoughtful and begin to ask, "Are these awards any good? Do they help a child to do a thing he would not have done anyway, and quite as well without the medal? Ought as well

Older folk, especially the teachers, do not like the idea. I am sure that I don't, and yet we give medals to children who earn them. The children like them very much. When I was the age of these youngsters, I would have like to win one. I remember one I earned and did not get, and perhaps that is the reason that I look with a little dread, a little dislike, upon the whole business.

Still, it has its uses, I know. A special lor itself and its creator, and awarded a merit mark, a scholarship or a medal. It is difficult to be impersonalities. Give the awards for work accomplished and the medal is likely to go to the right person.

As long as medals are recognized as academic honors, they are useful. The conditions of the award, however, are extremely important. Let them be above reproach.

Still, it has its uses, I know. A special below to get rid of bed bugs. Also they had an elegant recipe for salad dressing made with mineral oil, non-fattening and really delicious. whole business.

Still, it has its uses, I know. A medal does not inspire a child to do excellent work unless he already has the power and the will to do it. The reward is a recognition of his gift and his accomplishment. It is recognized by the higher schools as an academic honor and opens the door to the student at once. It enables him to enter without prellminary effort the school that welcomes his gift. That helps. And it has a tonic effect on the spirit of the winner that must not be disregarded.

These questions have been asked since the first medal was awarded. And we still award them. There must be some good, some use, in a practice that persists so strongly through the years. Maybe it survives because it is based on human vanity, the most enduring of human traits.

Arrived at, so much the better.

Let the awards be made for definitely prescribed work, not for personal qualifications like Charm, Personality, Most Helpful, Best Mannered. These qualities must be measured in terms of personal feeling, not actual judgment based on produced work. The work is there to speak for itself and its creator, and can be judged and awarded a legst through the produced when worn. I is easily replaced when worn. I used a flowered paper for a dressing table with a plain silk pettiperator.

Honor Tricks Always Need Consideration

Even if Partner Raises in Suit, More Than Hope Is Essential.

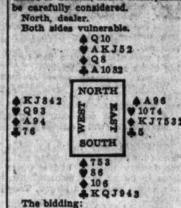

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright, 1938.)

I ALWAYS is a nice, comfortable feeling to have partner raise our suit bid. At least we know we have not run into the bridge player's perennial headache, a misfit. But it does not follow that we can go on bidding with impunity. Those of debbils, honor tricks, must be carefully considered.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

North East South West
I heart Pass 2 clubs Pass
3 clubs Pass 3 no trumps Pass

Though I am a hardened reporter,
I still must flinch when I think of what happened to South's ebullient no trump contract.
West opened his fourth best spade. East won with the ace and returned the suit. On the fourth and fifth rounds that West merrily rattled off East discarded low hearts which, of course, was an indirect request for a diamond shift. West laid down the diamond ace and followed with the nine spot, and thereupon East cashed in six luscious diamonds. South, at the end, sheepishly raked in two tricks, inscious diamonds. South, at the end, sheepishly raked in two tricks, for a 700 points penalty. North's remarks, although pointed, were hackneyed and need not be repeated. South defended himself by mumbling that he would have run if he had been doubled (which tained that he had figured six sure club tricks, and had hoped that these would be enough if North had stoppers in the other suits. I do not like to be the squasher

I do not like to be the squasher of "hopes," but the fact remains that South's hope was a bit thick. North had bid quite properly; in fact, exactly according to the book. (The opening bidder must raise his partner's minor suit take-out when holding three and one-half or more honor tricks and the K-J-x, or better, of responder's suit.) Obviously North's hand conformed exactly to these specifications. According to the Gold Book (page 244) the responder (in this case South) then must pass if unable to make a major suit or no trump bid, except with a very strong hand (three or more honor tricks), in which case he can rebid his suit. Of course that word "unable" may have been A "GOOD TAN," like everything class in nature (and in life and in business), seems to come to some people without effort, to others by careful strategy, and to some not at all.

Even though we explain this by murmuring the formula "Blondes, brunettes and redheads," still there are puzzling exceptions. There are freekles—if you feel like trying to to these specifications. According to the Gold Book (page 244) the responder (in this case South) the must pass if unable to make major suit or no trump bid, exceptions with a very strong hand (three case pouzzling exceptions. There are freekles—if you feel like trying to to these specifications. According to the search of ambiguous. My own opinion would be that South was unable to bid three no trump without a face card in spades, hearts, or diamonds, but apparently South himself thought otherwise!

The Warm Reception Otis Expected Is Not in Evidence. But He Decides to Practise in Waldron Dispite Opposition.

CHAPTER FIVE.

HEN Otis Byers ran out on the station platform, only to see Ethiyn, happy and absorbed, hanging fondly on her husband's arm, his spirits were decidedly dashed. Various sentimental passages, words that said little but implied a bitter sweet regret, glances quickly velled-yes, he had a right to think the feeling she aroused in him was reciprocal, and yet she went off without a goodby, without even a wave of her hand. Either she was entirely shallow and heartless or she was a deep and knowing strategist. Otis did not know which of these explanations he liked the least. He hated to think she had been amusing herself by making a fool of him, and yet he was fastidious enough to be repelled by a woman who took naturally to deviousness and trickery.

There was no use, however, in mooning in front of the railroad station and Otis was about to pick up his bags and be off when he was stopped by a pimply faced youth with a notebook.

"I'm from the Clarion," said the boy. "Going to be in our city for some time?" "So the Clarion sent you down to interview me, eh? I did not know I was so famous," replied Otis, patronizing but gratified.

"Huh? Oh, I meet all the trains," said . the youth. Otis had not supposed he was

The old town looked much the same, Otis realized as he walked up the main street. It might lack the excitement and mental stimulation of the city but, after all, for a place to live nothing could be better than a village like Waldron. Its people had leisure for the good solid virtues and not the least of these was their enduring interest in old friends. He hoped he had not passed up anyone he ought to would hate to hurt the feelings of any of them, but naturally, in his years away ne had seen so many new faces, his interests had been so much broader than those of the people back home that he could not be expected to remember them all. There was Prof. Briggs, his high school math Impssible to forget that old fellow! How pleased he would be to see one of his boys again! "Hello, professor," said Otis The old man nodded frostily.

"Don't you know me?" asked Otis. "I'm Otis Byers."

"Oh, yes, glad to see you, Otis." Otis laughed uneasily. "I guess I've changed some." Prof. Briggs looked at Otis' bag-

"I certainly wouldn't give it up on his say so," he remarked. "You always were obstinate as a mule," retorted Aunt Annie. "I kind of hoped Dr. Bulgin would teach you something, take you into his office, I mean. That's the main reason I spoke to him. But he said, at his age he did not have the patience to cope with the crazy ideas of a boy just out of medical school. He says they are all fads "I had a chance to go in with a brilliant surgeon in the city. I wouldn't associate myself with an old mossback like Dr. Bulgin, He's afraid of me, that's what it is. He knows he can't keep his patients with a first-class man in town. Or else there's something worse at the bottom of it," added Otis,

"Don't you want me here, aunt?

"Don't you want me here, aunt? I've been away so long, and you're the only kin I have in the world. I thought you would like to have me with you. And I love Waldron. I wanted to do something for the town. I've been away, I've had a good education, I'm a pretty darned good doctor, although you don't seem to think so. I thought I could be a real help to the community."

Otis tried to be dignified, but his voice choked a little. His air of assurance dropped from him. In spite of his perky mustache he looked like the small boy she used to tuck in bed at night and Miss Annie could not restrain a warm rush of
